completely balanced it must have two things. 1. Static Balance. This occurs when there is no resultant centrifugal force and the centre of gravity is on the axis of rotation. 2. Dynamic Balance. This occurs when there is no resulting turning moment along the axis. 2. BALANCING IN ONE PLANE If the system is a simple disc then static balance is all that is needed. Consider a thin disc or wheel ...

specify an input to a reactor of one ton of naphtha and an output of two tons of gasoline or gases or anything else. One ton of total material input will only give one ton of total output, i.e. total mass of input = total mass of output. A material balance is an accounting for material. Thus, material balances are often compared to the balancing of current accounts. They are used in industry ...
